Berlin Reports Withdrawal of Forces on Eastern Line in

ALLIES BOMBARD SOFIA

Russian Troops Meet Germans On Western Line in Champagne District and Repulse Attack.

LONDON, July 17.—A despatch from the British front in France says that Ovillers and La Boisselle on the Somme front, have now been completely cleared of Germans by the British. One hundred prisoners were taken.
The main positions are unchanged, except at Pozieres, where a trench was captured.

BERLIN, July 17.—Withdrawal of the German army of General Von Linsingen in Volhynia, on the eastern front, is admitted in an official statement issued by the war office today. The report states that the Germans checked the Russians on the Luck front, but withdraw behind the Lipa (Luga) river.

On the western front, the report says, the British succeeded in penetrating Ovillers on the Somme front.

In the Verdun sector, French attacks on the east side of the Meuse were repulsed.

PARIS, July 17.—French aviators have again bombed Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria, the French war office announced today.

PARIS, July 17.—German and Russian troops are at grips in France for the first time since the soldiers of the czar were landed on French soil.

The official communique issued by the war office at noon today stated that the Germans delivered a strong attack against the trench sections held by the Russians in the Champagne district last night but were repulsed.

A brilliant counter-attack was delivered by the Russian soldiers.
On the Verdun front in the region of Fleury, the French have made further progress in their offensive operations.

There has been intense bombardment on the Somme front where the Germans have tried to hinder with their artillery the organization of new French positions around Blaches and Hill No. 97.

PETROGAD, July 17.—The Hungarian town of Kiribaba, in the Carpathian mountains on the frontier of Transylvania, has been captured by the Russians, the war office reported today.

Kiribaba is 10 miles southwest of Radautz and represents a rapid advance of the Russians through the Carpathian mountains. The official statement announced the capture of German trenches near Riga at the extreme north end of the front and the capture of more men and guns.

KAISER ON SOMME FRONT

Calls Generals to Report as to Operations in the West.

AMSTERDAM, July 17.—Emperor William is at the Somme front, according to a despatch received today from Berlin. It stated that official announcement had been made in the German capital that the kaiser spent all day Sunday in the fighting area listening to reports of the German commander-in-chief on the course of operations against the French and British armies.

On his way to the front the kaiser had a long interview with General Von Falkenhayn, chief of the German general staff.

Upon reaching the German lines,
the war lord visited military hospitals where he pinned the Iron Cross upon a number of the wounded, at the same time expressing thanks and esteem for the men who had fought so gallantly for the fatherland.

Of the seven generals in the Prussian army who have been relieved of their commands and pensioned, it is reported that most of them were stationed on the western front. This was the first great shakeup in the command of the Prussian army and indicates that the kaiser has begun to feel some anxiety over the outcome of the fighting in France.

WANT VOTE FOR
PHONE SYSTEM
OWNED BY CITY

Five Voters Say They'll Circulate Initiative Petition.

Guarantee of Employees the Right to Unionize, is

A petition under the initiative and referendum laws, calling for a vote on a proposed ordinance drafted to make the Lima Telephone and Telegraph company a municipal possession, is to be circulated in the city, according to official notice formally served on City Auditor David L.
Rupert at nine o'clock this morning.
If ten percent of the voters of Lima sign the petition, there will be a special ballot for the November election which will decide whether or not the city shall purchase, condemn, or otherwise acquire the local telephone system. If the petition should gain the required number of signers, about 700, and subsequently be passed in November, the city authorities would be authorized to get the telephone plant—the method not being specified in the ordinance —and issue bonds to pay for it, the bonds to be secured by a franchise subject to forfeiture to the bondholders in case the municipal management should fail.

Former Safety Director Edwin
Blank, Scott Wilkins, E. O. McPherson,
S. L. Neuman and E. B. Lewis are the affiants signing the declaration, declaring such steps necessary and stating the ordinance for which the petitions are to be circulated.
Minor A. Atmure is the notary before whom the signers appeared for swearing. Briefly summarized, the contents of the ordinance as outlined in the declaration of intentions are as follows:

1. Acquisition of Lima telephone system declared necessary.
2. Council and mayor authorized to obtain the plant and rights, franchises, claims, etc.,
"by condemnation or otherwise."
3. Payment to be made to owners from money to be secured by issuance of mortgage bonds, which in turn is to be secured by a franchise granted by the council.

BASE CAMP CONSTRUCTED
IN NEW MEXICO, REPORTED
FOR PERSHING'S ARMY

Withdrawal of Punitive Expedition Within Next Thirty Days
Seems Certain

MEXICO CITY IS QUIET

Carranza Directs Volunteers to Return to Homes As War Danger Has Been Averted.

EL PASO, Texas, July 17.—Reports that General Pershing and his entire punitive expedition would be out of Mexico within 30 days, were revived today with the announcement that construction of a huge base camp has been started at Deming, N. M., 35 miles north of Columbus.

Army officers, in discussing the new camp, openly intimated their belief that it presages a return of the Pershing expedition to United States soil. The official explanation of the new camp base is that it is to be for militia sent to the border, and to be a secondary base for Columbus.

It is understood that the camp is to have accommodations for 25,000 men. A major, who is an expert on camp location and construction, has been placed in charge of the work and is assisted by more than a regiment of men in laying out the site.

"Pershing will have to come out within the next two weeks, or remain throughout the rainy season," said a staff officer today. "If the rain catches him there he will not be able to move his provisions. The government will certainly not want to destroy such a great quantity of supplies."

U. S. BOARD ORDERS
CASTRO DEPORTED

Rules Venezuela Ex-President Must Go; Moral Turpitude Charge.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Gen.
Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, and his wife, who arrived here from Port of Spain, Trinidad, on the steamship Vauban, were ordered deported from the United States by a special board of inquiry at the Ellis Island immigration station.

The hearing, which lasted fifty minutes, was private. The charge against Gen. Castro, however, was said to involve moral turpitude. The order as applied to Mrs. Castro was characterized as technical.

Gen. and Mrs. Castro, who had been permitted to spend last night on board the Vauban, now are detained at Ellis Island.

After similar action was taken against Gen. Castro on his former visit to this country three years ago, and after an appeal to the department of labor was denied, he sued out a writ of habeas corpus in a federal court. The writ being granted, the former president of Venezuela was permitted to land, after he furnished a bond, pending an appeal by the government. Gen. Castro voluntarily left the country before the appel was heard.

Commissioner of Immigration Frederic C. Howe placed his personal quarters at Ellis Island at the disposal of the Castros. Commenting on the action of the special board of inquiry, Gen. Castro said:

"It is so strange, so strange. I do not understand the procedure. I feel that the precedent set upon my last visit here will apply and I will be released."

Later the former president issued a statement over his signature, in which he asserted that he believed his case had been definitely and favorably decided on his former visit here. His statement read:

"You ask why I have come. I would not have come to New York if there had been a direct steamship line to Porto Rico from Trinidad, a trip that could be made in two days.
Unfortunately for me, there is not such a line and it was unavoidable to come to this city to take the steamer to Porto Rico, where I have my family and interests."

MEXICO CITY, July 17.—Following announcement that diplomatic negotiations had succeeded in averting any danger of war between the United States and Mexico, military commanders in Mexico today directed volunteers who answered the call to arms when hostilities were considered imminent to return to their homes. The commanders acted on instructions from the de facto government.

Each commander addressed a manifesto of thanks to the volunteers in which they assured all citizens that danger of war was over.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Postponement of the pending direct negotiations between the United States and the de facto government of Mexico appeared almost inevitable today. Officials admitted that if the unofficial reports of the increasing bandit activities along and near the border were confirmed it would be impossible to discuss the withdrawal of American troops at this time.

Another reason given for the suggested postponement is the reported defection of General Trevino. He is in command of the main Carranzista army in northern Mexico. Denials from the Mexican embassy have met every suggestion that this leader has revolted against the Carranza rule. Rumors persist, however, here, that Trevino has renounced Carranza and these reports have reached the war and state departments. Verification of them will make it almost certain that the prolonged negotiations will be dropped, at least temporarily.

MEXICO'S ARMY 354,000.

English Correspondent Gives Estimate Furnished by General Obregon.

HAVANA, July 17.—Mexico has an army of 250,000 infantry and 104,000 cavalry, all trained men.
This army has sufficient ammunition.
The government has $15,000,000 in its treasury. Its leaders can deal with equanimity any foreign intervention.

These statements are made by an English war correspondent who went to Mexico City when hostilities between Mexico and the United States appeared to be only a matter of hours. He has investigated the situation in the Mexican capital, has interviewed Minister of War Obre-gon, bankers and business men. In a despatch transmitted by this correspondent today he reveals that the Mexican army now as an aviation corps commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Salinas, and that the Mexican army is being improved daily.

He quotes General Obregon as follows on the recent crisis with the United States:
"I received orders from the first chief (Carranza) to make preparations for the protection of the border from prowling bandits. I have taken such necessary steps as far as possible and will continue to do so. His order still stands. If the United States does the same the end of all differences is in sight.

"We are adequately armed and provisioned to compel obedience in a short time from the bandits and evil-wishers of the government who are causing international trouble and desire intervention. They are enemies of Mexico.

"It is untrue that during the crisis we invited Villa, Zapata and other bandits to join us against the common enemy. An edict was issued to all Mexicans to flock to the standard, but that excluded those who placed themselves outside the pale of the law.

"I have no doubt we can control the internal trouble and guarantee the safety of foreigners in outlying places. Mines and other industries can proceed under our supervision. Foreign capital is in any case insured.

"We have men and money. If the present standing army is insufficient we will increase it to such an extent that it will be impossible for brigandage to be profitable."

Commenting on the interview, the correspondent says: "Oregon impressed me. He talked like Kitchener after we took Pretoria. He talked like Kitchener when only he ruled Africa. Oregon is the strong man of Mexico."

fore five judges in the court of criminal appeals today.

The chief points made by Alexander Sullivan, K. C., chief of counsel for Casement were:

1. Whether the matter described in the charge against Casement was an offense within the statute under which the indictment was drawn.

2. Whether the definition of the offense of "adhering to the king's enemies" as given by Baron Reading, the lord chief justice, in his charge to the jury, was an accurate or defective definition.

The arguments were heard by Justices Farling, Bray, Scrutton, Lawrence and Atkin.

The court-room was crowded today, many of the spectators being lawyers who were interested in the legal points which were expected to be brought out.

Counsel for Casement began by saying that the appeal was against conviction on points of law. When Mr. Sullivan began his address to the court, Casement had not yet arrived in the dock.

The appellant, who was arrested in connection with an attempt to land arms and ammunition on the Irish coast for use by the Sinn Fein rebels, was found guilty of high treason on June 29 and sentenced to death.

WANT VOTE FOR PHONE PLANT OWNED BY CITY

Others who may have authority enjoined from preventing formation of union or similar association among employees of municipal telephone company. CONFISCATION, SAYS CABLE.

"The people of Lima and telephone users generally," he said, "chiefly require efficient, adequate and first-class service. Under the plan suggested by this ordinance such a thing is impossible, for many reasons which could be suggested. The suggested confiscation of the property of the telephone company would be unjust to the present investors, and the idea of selling bonds without the city assuming liability for the payment of principal or interest would be unjust to persons who might be induced to purchase such bonds. The entire matter is unauthorized by law and is not in the interest of the community."

5,000 ROTARIANS REACH CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., July 17.—Mayor Fucha this morning welcomed more than 5,000 visiting Rotarians to Cincinnati at Emory Auditorium. Addresses of welcome were also made by retiring President Tingle and President Nollish of the Chamber of Commerce. The program of today includes women Rotarian luncheon, Zoo concert, tennis and golf tournaments, parade and a Georgia watermelon party. The convention will begin business tomorrow. The city is handsomely decorated, with everything open to the guests. The slogan adopted is "Service, not Self."

The contest between Atlanta and Kansas City for the 1917 convention is one of the features of the opening day, with flags, streamers and bands. Delegates from Indianapolis, St. Louis, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are in the city with delegations coming on each train from other cities.

LOYAL MOOSE PLAN OUTING LABOR DAY

The Loyal Order of Moose has arranged for a big excursion to Detroit by way of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton and the White Star line steamer, the Greyhound, on Labor day, which falls this year on September 4. The fare for the round trip is set for $1.25, and children, 65 cents.

Aside from the many attractions to be enjoyed in the City of the Straits, a baseball game will be played and the trip to and from Detroit to Toledo, by water, will be one of the finest palatial steamers which plies the Great Lakes. Four full hours may be enjoyed in Detroit.

The Lima Locomotive Corporation is already advertising their excursion and outing to Cedar Point on Saturday, August 5. The committee in charge expects the largest annual outing in the Lake Erie and Western railroad will handle the crowds. The fare is $1.25 for the round trip. Practically all the employees and their families will make the trip.

FORTY, FRESH AIR KIDS' REACH LIMA

Children From Cleveland Here to Pass Two Weeks in Heaven.

Forty "fresh air kids" from Cleveland, accompanied with two escorts, arrived in Lima, over the Western Ohio, this morning at 11:35. They are a bunch of poor boys and girls from the slums of Cleveland who are annually given an outing by the Fresh Air Camp and Hospital of the First City.

Arrangements have been made by the several farmers surrounding Lima, to take care of the children and to show them a good time during their two weeks stay here.

Outings of this kind are taking place all over the state in which towns the size of Lima are providing amusement for the little tots.

ROTARY MEMBERS LAUD PROJECTS

Heads of Organization Favor Erection of New Schools.

Suggestions regarding the varied means which the Rotary club can employ in urging improvements for Lima provided the chief topic of conversation at the noonday luncheon of the organization at the Norval today.

Despite the fact that many local Rotarians are attending the international convention at Cincinnati the attendance was far from small.

The need of better facilities for lighting the streets, brought to the attention of the club by H. D. Campbell and A. B. Hildreth, was referred on motion to the work while committee. Both speakers pointed out the necessity for improving the lights, urging especially that the work be started before the improvement of the streets is begun.

Another matter considered by the club was the coming bond issue election calling for $100,000 to modernize the schools of the city. This calls for a South Side Industrial High School, improvements in grade buildings and other investments. Walter B. Richey championed the idea, and First Vice President D. J. Cable, presiding officer during July, added the suggestion that each grade building have a large playground to preclude the necessity of the children playing in the street.

An acrimonious extempore debate between George S. Vinary and Mr. Richey, regarding the activities and influence of the organization, did much to speed up the session to an usual heat. The latter strongly endorsed the new Gridiron Club, an objective of argument. Manager Lewis, of the National Gas company, was introduced by E. R. Curtin, and one new member, E. R. Curtin, made his initial appearance. Lee P. Fletcher, formerly of Lima but now a resident of Houston, Texas, spoke at length on the pranks of Texas cyclones and floods. He was the guest of George H. McElhenny.

BRIDE SUES FOR DIVORCE

She says at divers times and places he has allowed paternal influences to intervene between himself and wife. When he left her, he went to live with his parents.

She says he refuses to provide her a home, has spent money in entertaining other women at places shows and ice cream parlors, while she was compelled to remain at home on account of her condition.

IDA M. TARBELL IS TO SPEAK TUESDAY EVENING IN LIMA

America's Greatest Publicist Will Appear at the Chautauqua Tomorrow.

TONIGHT'S PROGRAM.

White Musical Review company in costume musical of popular numbers. Chaplain W. C. Coleman, Spanish-American war veteran, in his wonderful lecture.

Tuesday Afternoon. The Daveny Festival Quintette in full concert.

Tuesday Evening. Lecture on "Industrial Idealism" by Miss Ida M. Tarbell, America's foremost journalist characteristist and publicist. "Speaking Likenesses of Great Men" Sidney Landon, popular characterist.

Sunday was the biggest day yet at the Chautauqua and from many miles around came people, both in their motor cars and by interurban and steam lines, to enjoy the delightful things offered. The big company which fled away from the tent last night was enthusiastic in their praise of the attractions offered.

Already there is a movement on foot to hold a Chautauqua next year and in case this movement crystallizes into action, there is no doubt but that, on account of the quality of the attractions this year, Lima will enjoy a patronage next year heretofore unexcelled in the way of Chautauqua gatherings.

The program tonight is one of interest to every person. White's Musical Review company will give a costume musical review of some of the popular music. The program will be spectacular and all will prove most effective and pretty. Chaplain W. C. Coleman, of the Spanish-American war, will follow with his notable lecture.

Tuesday Miss Ida Tarbell, America's most famous publicist, will be in Lima and will be one of the star attractions of the Chautauqua. The coming of Miss Tarbell is of especial importance to the laboring class and for this reason, her lecture has been placed in the evening, to give the men from the industrial institution an opportunity to hear what she has to say.

Already many reservations have been made for the program which the San Carlo Grand Opera company will present on Wednesday evening. This will be the big number of the Chautauqua and the closing number of the program. A small amount is charged to reserve seats for this number and reservations should be made at once.

The company is one of the best which is doing Chautauqua work and brings this high class entertainment, right to Lima's door. It is expected the evening's entertainment will be a musical and society event.

The program for the two remaining days is of such high class nature and the quality unsurpassed, and no one will want to miss one number thereon.

Sunday Was Big Day.

The Chautauqua on Sunday proved most attractive. The Florentine Singers and Players' company delighted in a program, given in the afternoon, in which Andrew Viscoche, the world's leading exponent of the concert accordion, pleased with his work. He has a fine and expensive instrument, holding medals for proficient playing and accomplishes wonderful results.

He appeared to advantage with Miss Stella Merrick, on the violin, and both were roundly applauded. Miss Mollie Midlrum, soprano, received merited applause. In her musical reading, "The Nightingale" she was especially good.

Dr. Glenn Frank was the lecturer yesterday afternoon. His subject was, "Re-Setting the World's Stage." He is a most brilliant thinker and among the young men of the country, stands very high. Before 21 years of age, he secured his degree, becoming professor of sociology in the Northwestern University at Chicago. As a member of the body of men in Boston who are interesting themselves in philanthropic endeavor, he is employed as sociological adviser. The relation of things as he finds them there gives him his place in the world, large business interests being united to secure inside information on the development of results from the war. He studies the trend of events to decide how best to adjust our American business conditions and relations to meet the needs. His lecture is constructive and is based largely on the information secured in these paths and his own great logical conclusions.

The lecture was a master-piece, in its analysis of conditions and probable conditions to be faced as a nation industrially or economically after the war is over. In his pathetic and discouraging side, he finds a ray of hope in the solution suggested in his combined thought.

Chautauqua Pleased at Night. The Florentines again delighted in the evening, after which Dr. F. S. Fannon, formerly pastor of a St. Louis church, gave the lecture, from the subject, "Sculptors of Deity." His subject concerned those who had to do with child life, the school and the home and the individual relations which character and conditions left on young people, as elders come in contact with them.

With Karl Germain, in his mystifying stunts at 11 o'clock today, the White's Musical Review company this afternoon, followed by Robert H. Wilkinson in his lecture, "Music, Its Yesterdays and Tomorrows," Monday was crowded full of interesting events.

MAYOR REPORTS FUND GROWING

From present indications, members of Company C who have been without sleeping accommodations and other equipment, will be taken care of in the near future, as a large number of public-spirited citizens have replied to the call of Mayor Simpson and tendered subscriptions to the sum that is being raised to buy supplies they are short in.

According to the conservative estimate of several officers of the local, it is believed that about $200 will be needed to relieve the shortage. Reports from the mobilization camp at Columbus indicate that at the present time 60 members of the company are sleeping on the bare ground.

DENY ORPET HAS WED MISS YOUKER

LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 17.—Members of the family of Will Orpet, acquitted Saturday on the charge of having poisoned his 17-year-old sweetheart, Marion Lambert, today declined to comment upon a report that he had been married yesterday to Celeste Youker, former sweetheart. Orpet, who spent Saturday night at home for the first time in months, was up early yesterday morning and away with friends in an automobile. Miss Youker also was away from home most of the day and it was said she had "gone with an automobile party."

Members of the Orpet family said today that the young man would leave for the northern woods within the week. Later he plans to resume his studies but probably not at the University of Wisconsin. Frank Lambert, father of the dead girl, who has been almost broken down by the strain of his daughter's death and the long trial, was reported today to have been superadded as gardener of the big Lake Forest estate on which he had been employed.

THE IDLER

Judge J. I. Allread of Columbus, is substituting this week for Judge W. H. Kinder of Findlay, on the bench of the court of appeals.

R. W. Winks, arrested Saturday on a charge of burglary and larceny pleaded not guilty when arraigned in criminal court this morning and was bound over to the grand jury under $300 bond.

Last evening while going down the cellar steps, Mrs. Harry Kookon of South Jackson street, slipped and broke her ankle. A doctor was immediately called and the injury was found to be of a serious nature. Mrs. Kookon is an earnest worker of the Loyal Workers class of the South Side Church of Christ, and it is with much concern that the friends of the injured woman hear of the accident.

Lima lodge, No. 91, Knights of Pythias, installed the following officers at the regular meeting: I. J. Robbins, chancellor commander; C. W. Preble, vice chancellor; A. D. Coss, prelate; George Blair, master of work; I. J. Nowell, inner guard; C. M. Wood, master-at-arms; J. J. Anderson, outer guard.

TAYLOR FUNERAL TODAY.

Funeral services for Charles F. Taylor, former manager of the G. R. Hopkins Clothing company, were held this morning at the South Side Church of Christ. The Rev. Cecil Franklin, pastor of the church, officiated at the service. Interment was at Woodlawn.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Lyle left last night for Chicago. They will this week attend the supreme lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose, at Moonheart, Ill.

Miss Elmore Sullivan left Saturday for Wabash, Ind., where she will visit friends.

ORDINANCE PROPOSED TO TAKE OVER LIMA TELEPHONE PLANT

To the auditor of the city of Lima, Ohio:

Sir: We, the undersigned citizens, who seek to propose an ordinance or measure in the municipality of the city of Lima, Ohio, by initiative petition, before circulating such petition, herewith file a duly certified copy of the proposed ordinance or measure with the city auditor of the city of Lima, Ohio, in the words and figures following, to-wit:

An ordinance authorizing the city of Lima to acquire by condemnation or otherwise the property of the Lima Telephone and Telegraph Company, and the issue and sale of mortgage bonds and the passage of a franchise as security for such bonds.

LIMA MAN TAKES PART IN RELAY

J. B. Grieshaber, an employee of the Mack garage, connected his link in the chain that is being forged by 52 drivers of Saxon cars in a coast to coast race. This is the first relay race of this kind to be recorded in the United States. Grieshaber drove from Lima to Fort Wayne yesterday a distance of 82 miles in 2 hours and 30 minutes.

The driver who arrived from the eastern point gave Lima man a message from Mayor Mitchell of New York, which will be relayed along the route until San Francisco is reached, where it will be delivered to Mayor Rolf of that city. According to a representative of the Saxon Motor Car company, this is another test to ascertain the efficiency of the car.

CLARKE HAS CLEAR TRACK TO BENCH

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The senate judiciary committee today appointed a sub-committee consisting of Senators Overman of North Carolina, O'Gorman of New York, and Fletcher of Florida, democrats, and Clark of Wyoming, and Dillingham of Vermont, republicans, to make inquiry into the president's nomination of Judge John H. Clarke of Cleveland to the supreme court to succeed Charles Evans Hughes. It is understood that Clarke will be confirmed without objection and the appointment of the sub-committee was simply a formality.

FLOOD PROTECTION IN HIGHEST COURT

COLUMBUS, O., July 17.—The prosecuting attorneys of Miami, Clark and Shelby counties today asked the supreme court to reverse the action of the Montgomery county courts which appointed E. A. Deeds, Gordon S. Rentschler and H. M. Allen, directors of the Miami conservancy district. More than 1,000 persons are parties to this suit, about equally divided on each side.

The complainants seek to prevent the establishment of the proposed district including the ten counties of Montgomery, Butler, Hamilton, Warren, Preble, Clark, Green, Miami, Shelby and Logan. The suit involves an interpretation of the Ohio flood conservancy act.

The petitions declared that outside of Montgomery and Butler counties there is no need for such a district. It is also claimed that the lower courts violated the state constitution in appointing the directors. It was further charged that the common pleas erred in permitting Judge Hoover of Logan county, to withdraw from the case.

Jesse Wilson, arrested Saturday night on a charge of disorderly conduct, pleaded guilty to the charge in criminal court this morning and was fined $5 and costs.

Council will be asked at the regular meeting tonight to instruct the city collector to file suit against the D. T. & L. railway to collect $1,045 due the city.

ELEPHANT CHARGED WITH BEING MOST DECEPTIVE ANIMAL

Zoo Experts Declare Big Beast is Not Amiable
by Any Means.

Has Cunning That is Used to Damage Everybody Around Him.

By Frederic J. Haackin.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The elephant, who enjoys an enviable reputation for intelligence and amiability, has been basking in a public approval he does not deserve. He is really a dangerous and treacherous beast in captivity, and while he is intelligent enough, he is prone to misapply the brains that nature gave him.

At least, such has been the experience of the zoo authorities, according to William T. Hornaday, director and general curator of the Bronx Zoo here. The story of Minnie, the circus elephant, who carefully lifted the trainer's little boy to safety on her back before she chastised the trainer who had beaten her, is not accepted with enthusiastic credulity by the zoo keepers. Such a thing may be true of circus elephants, they admit, but certainly not of those residing in a zoo, who are never remarkably docile and as old age comes on develop a tremendous ambition to kill a keeper.

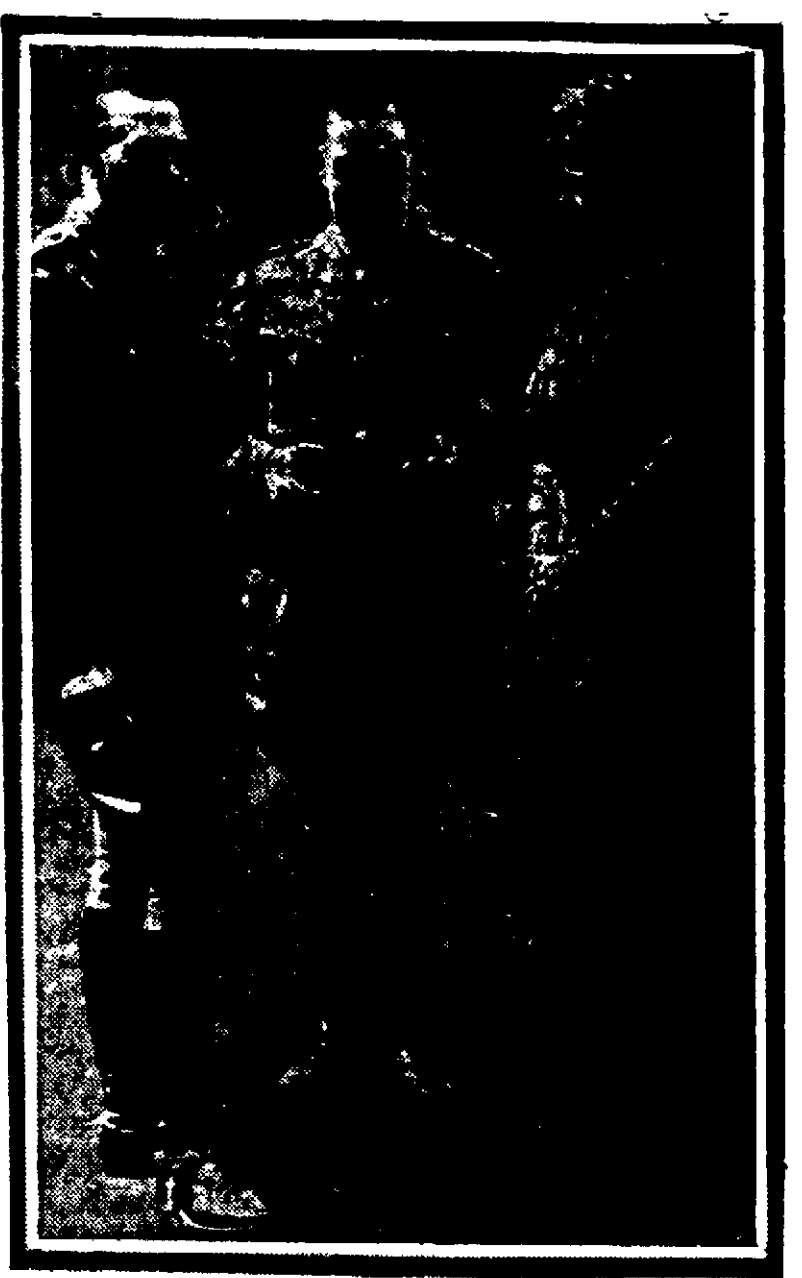

Only last summer, for example, it became necessary to shoot Gunda, the large Indian elephant of the park, because he became so unmanageable. According to the popular version of the elephant story, Gunda should have disliked only those who fed him bad peanuts and tobacco and exhibited a passionate devotion for his keeper who had petted him, but what Gunda really did was to attack everybody who attempted to enter the cage and made the process of feeding him exceedingly dangerous. All keepers were equally distasteful to him, so that it finally became the duty of the Zoological society to have him shot. His skeleton and skin are now to be found in the Museum of Natural History, while his anatomy was presented to the College of Physicians and Surgeons for use in research work.

Not only is the elephant not to be trusted, but other animals show a lamentable tendency to eat the hand that feeds them. For instance, in the opinion of Mr. Hornaday, nothing is quite so dangerous as a pet bear; and for this reason the keepers in the Bronx park are requested not to take the slightest chance with any of the animals. A man may feed a bear an apple two hundred and sixty times with perfect safety, and on the two hundred and sixty-first time have his hand chewed off. Such an accident occurred not long ago when a keeper tried to pose a bear for the park photographer, the bear attacking the keeper and devouring his right hand.

While a number of accidents are to be expected in the business of exhibiting wild animals, the Bronx park has been unusually fortunate in this respect, especially in the case of visitors. Only two disasters have occurred to visitors within the past twenty years, and one of these was entirely the fault of the victim. Before a policeman could reach him, a drunken man placed his hand within the cage of a large polar bear, who cordially accepted it. The second case was due to another vicious elephant who succeeded in breaking an iron knob off his door and flinging it out among a Sunday afternoon crowd of visitors, striking a small boy in the face and cutting him. The Bronx has a very good record for a park containing many dangerous animals and having an annual patronage of nearly two million visitors.

Bronx park, while belonging to the city of New York, is under the exclusive direction of the New York Zoological society. The city appropriates two hundred thousand dollars annually for the maintenance of the grounds, animals and buildings, and the rest of the money required is obtained from the gate receipts. Two days each week an admission charge of twenty-five cents is made, in addition to which the society runs two park restaurants, a boat pavilion on the lake and supplies a number of riding animals for the purpose of making money. The original idea was to use this money for buying new animal collections, but the expense of maintenance and repair is so great that the city appropriation doesn't begin to cover it and the profits of the amusement business go to make up the deficit. The animal collections are usually amplified by the contributions of private citizens or members of the society. Since valuable animals are always dying of old age, or of various diseases resulting from captivity, it is necessary to be buying new ones all the time. During the past two years, of course, the European war has greatly interfered with the transporting of animals from Africa, so that all the new species have come either from private collections in England or from South America. Even under normal conditions, it is difficult to procure shipping space for wild animals, most of the American shippers refusing to transport them on passenger vessels. On the other hand, the German shippers in the past did not object to carrying animals for any distance on any kind of steamers, so that Hagenbeck, the famous German capturer of wild animals, was allowed to obtain a monopoly on the animal import business.

There are now forty-six hundred specimens in the zoo. This number is apt to fluctuate between forty-two hundred and five thousand during the year, the lowest number always occurring in January of each year. New York, because of its cold damp winters, is very hard on the animals who are particularly subject to lung and bronchial troubles; and the cold winter rains, which last for days at a time, in which the cages become permeated with dampness, always take their annual toll of animal life. These rains are also responsible for a great deal of animal rheumatism. A pygmy elephant named Congo was mercifully shot last year because he had become lame and deformed with rheumatism, resulting from the unusually severe climate.

Another difficulty in taking care of unacclimated species is the change of food, which sometimes disagrees with them. It is almost impossible, for example, to maintain a gorilla in this country. An agent of the society obtained a female gorilla in Africa and brought her safely all the way to the zoo, only to have her die one year after her entrance. During this time she was the subject of medical experiment, every known method being employed to save her life. She was given the tuberculin test three times, each time registering negative, after which doses of arsenic, strychnine and iron were poured down her throat and she was administered extracts of thyroid and thymus glands. Every kind of possible food was provided her, but without tempting her to eat, and finally she died of exhaustion and what an autopsy proved to be cage paralysis.

The animals are also subject to epidemics of toxic gastroenteritis, an intestinal disorder, in which the mortality is as high as 95 per cent; the sea lions are constantly having ptomaine poisoning due to eating putrid fish which get into their food supply undiscovered, and the larger animals often have tape-worms, particularly the polar bears and rhinoceroses. In view of these recurring afflictions, the utmost care must be exercised in buying food for the animals in order to ascertain that it is fresh, and this is a considerable item of zoo expense. The food bill for last year was $36,785, which covered the cost of eighty-five different kinds of food, the food required to feed one elephant costing four dollars a day.

Next to Coney Island, the Bronx Zoo park is the most popular institution in New York for children. This is not a matter of accurate statistical record, but a conclusion based upon the observation of the Zoological society. Here comes the infant New Yorker in his baby carriage when his fists are too small to hold peanuts, accompanied by his mother or nurse, who sit on the park benches and embroider diligently. A few years later he is riding his velocipede past the great yak's cage, feeding popcorn to the bears and wading in the Bronx lake which winds through the park. Although several miles from the downtown section of the city, the East Side is well represented by a large number of foreign children on non-payment days, who through the animal houses and park benches, eating large portions of peanuts and chattering in a dozen different languages.

Although hundreds daily visit the park, sometimes bringing their lunches, almost always buying packages of peanuts, popcorn and candy, it is interesting to note that there is no waste paper or refuse left on the grass or in the woods. This is due to the rigorous campaign waged by the society with the co-operation of the city police against the throwing of waste paper. For many years it had been against the law to distribute refuse and cast waste paper on city property, but the law had never been enforced, and when a policeman did make an arrest on such a charge, he was reproved by the court as being too conscientious. Then the mayor evidenced an interest in the cause, and suddenly there occurred dozens of arrests throughout the city of park vandals, caught in the act of throwing waste paper. Followed a period of fining every guilty pedestrian, and as a consequence today no city has any cleaner or better kept parks than New York.

But the proletariat are not the only ones who enjoy the Bronx park. Here also come men of science to study one of the best collections of animal specimens in America, as well as a private collection of horns, antlers and mounted heads that is reported to be the finest in the world. Zoological research work is constantly going forward, one of the latest methods being the taking of moving pictures showing the habits of certain species. This is done by the use of mercury-vapor lights at night. Some of the most recent films showed several species of tree toads, their throats distended in the effort of sinking and five different species of snakes in the act of emerging from the eggs, as well as the feeding habits of several small reptiles and animals.

Thus perhaps science is the greatest beneficiary of the zoo. In addition to studying rare species of animals, the medical profession is always obtaining new information concerning diseases by the observation and treatment of sick animals and the dissection of the many who die. So that the zoo is an institution of many uses.

How to Prevent Croup.

Every effort should be made to prevent the attack by giving the child a light supper and plenty of fresh air at all times. The child should be warmly clad when out of doors. Especially the feet should be well protected and under no circumstances should the child be allowed to remain with wet or cold feet. Then watch for the first symptom, hoarseness, and give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at once and the attack may be warded off. This remedy is a favorite with the mothers of croupy children and can always be depended upon. It is pleasant and safe to take. Obtainable everywhere. mo-wed-fr

TO SPEND MILLIONS ON U.S. DEFENSE AT NORFOLK

Will Build Largest Warships at Navy Yard and Place Big Guns.

NORFOLK, Va., July 17.—Many millions of dollars will be spent on coast defenses at this point to protect the entrance to Chesapeake Bay as a result of legislation passed by the present congress. In addition the navy yard here will be enlarged so that it will be able to build the greatest warship. This city will show a substantial increase in population as a result of preparedness activity.

At Cape Henry and Fort Monroe many new giant turrets and great mortars will be cunningly placed behind concrete, steel and sand in such a way that no warship can reach them.

Guns and mortars at Cape Henry alone will cost $1,500,000. The emplacements and the plant, including a wharf for landing supplies, a connecting railway, an electric system and the submarine defenses other than materials, will cost nearly three millions more; while quarters for officers, barracks for men, a machine shop and its equipment will altogether run over a million and a half.

Plans drawn before the present war for defense to protect the forts from the land side have now had to be scrapped and new ones prepared. These call for another $500,000.

It is important to make this district impregnable because here, as possibly nowhere else in the country, could an occupying force find its own subsistence. Fish in any quantity is present, oysters, clams and crabs are abundant and four to five crops of vegetables are produced annually.

Hampton Roads is a magnificent harbor, without heavy currents, danger of ice, or important tidal changes in level.

The present navy yard at Norfolk employs about 3,000 men. This number will be increased when ways are built for battleships. Hitherto only torpedo boats and destroyers have been constructed here. Now this yard will at all times be busy building either a battleship or a battle cruiser.

The "ways" will cost $500,000 and three times that amount will be needed for the construction and equipment of a great combination shop where plate angles will be made and ship fitters, plumbers, blacksmiths, pipefitters, sheet and metal workers, boilermakers, carpenters and other artisans may work.

Norfolk will also have a thousand foot dry dock, the only other one in the country being at Philadelphia. It is probable that the army artillery school at Fort Monroe and the navy training station here will take on enhanced importance.

There are also several canal projects in which Norfolk is interested which have an important bearing on preparedness, especially the channel to be cut from Virginia Beach to the headquarters of the Lynnhaven river.

HELPS WEEDING OF GARDEN

Difficulty in removing small weeds around plants in the garden may be overcome by the use of a forceps made of a piece of wire. The wire is formed into two loops by which the weeds are grasped, and the portion held in the hand is bent to form a circular spring. Its tension may be regulated so that the hand will not be tired in using the device.

OVER THE TRACES

It was to be expected that some sturdy souls in the extinct Bull Moose party would resent being sold like slaves at an auction. Francis J. Henery, the brilliant prosecutor of Abe Ruef and Eugene Schmitz of San Francisco, was the first to kick over the traces and refuse to be led. Colby of New Jersey followed, and now the Progressive nominee for the vice presidency, John M. Parker of Louisiana, has called for a rump convention of all Bull Moose delegates with a sense of freedom or honor.

It is not probable that a ticket will be placed in the field. The party will die from malnutrition. The withdrawal of Perkins's cheque book removes the financial pillar on which the party was based. But the gathering will be a great protest against the Wall street manoeuvres which resulted in Roosevelt's betrayal of the Bull Moose adherents to the very men he claimed to abhor in 1912.

If Penrose and Gallinger, Morgan and Frick, Schwab and Smoot, Crane and the rest of the Old Guard leaders and backers were "crooks", "burglars", "porcelain-benders" and "highwaymen" in 1912, what are they in 1916? Have they undergone some spiritual regeneration which makes them acceptable to the virtuous colonel? Hardly—the colonel has had a change of base. Or has he, really? How many are they who can believe that he was sincere in 1912 when he attacked the same Wall street financiers his campaign in 1904 and which had protected for seven years in the White House? Was Roosevelt ever a Progressive in anything more than an ambition to get a third cup of coffee?

It's too much to believe. And because of incredulity there are many thousands of Parker Progressives who will follow his call and fall in line behind Wilson.

INTELLIGENT VOTING

In the 5570 precincts scattered about the 88 counties of Ohio there are 1,153,920 voters. As there are many contests in the races for county tickets, for state offices and for congress, it is to be assumed that a large vote will turn out—of the voters show unprecedented interest in the primary—there may be almost fifty percent. The politicians, the manipulators, the candidates and their immediate friends will be there, some will attend the primary because they pass the polls on the way to work and a few patriots will vote from a sense of duty. But what value is it to a state to have a large percentage of the vote out if the voting is not intelligently done?

Take the Democratic race for secretary of state, for example. In the line-up appear the following names: Carl T. Antenen, William D. Fulton, Colin C. Meekison, J. Henry Newman, Thornton R. Snyder and William A. Weygandt. Who knows enough about them to vote with a sense of familiarity?

The politicians know all about them. In each man's community he will have a circle of friends and adherents. Keen observers who pay a great amount of attention to the workings of the party machinery can tell who the candidates are and what elements they represent. But the plain, ordinary voter must depend on the advice of more or less unreliable political "leaders", and that offers little assurance of justification. The candidates will get out their literature and pass around cards, but how will the voting be done? The "organization" will send out the tip for Snyder, Weygandt's German name will draw a German vote, Antenen will get a chunk because his name is first, Meekison will probably draw well in his own sphere around Napoleon, Newman, a candidate for years, will attract those who know he took the nomination when all others refused and Fulton will capture the votes around Newark and vicinity. Ninety per cent of the voters will take a random shot at the bunch without knowing or caring for whom the vote is cast. After the primary we will find a nominee for secretary of state and wonder who he may be.

The Republicans will do about the same thing. When they see the list of aspirants for the job of auditor there will be the monetary indifference, the subsequent indifference and the voting without intelligence. On that list will appear Hayes M. Adams, George C. Braden, Charles D. Conover, formerly speaker of the house, Stephen A. Stillwell, Joseph T. Tracey and Jacob J. Wise. How many Republicans know anything about one of them, much less all?

It is an inspiring thought to realize that we live in a free country where every man has the right to vote!

I have constantly to remind myself that I am not the servant of those who wish to enhance the value of their Mexican investments, but that I am the servant of the rank and file of the people of the United States.

—President Wilson before the New York Press Club.

Rather a direct reply to the insinuating critics who know all about the president's "miserable failure" but who conceal their financial reasons for wanting to sacrifice American boys to protect American grafters.

Some day some candidate will run for governor on the plea that the obsolete canals in Ohio, with crumbling locks and weedy channels, should be drained off and sold. It will be a pleasure to vote for that man.

Charles Dick is sending out letters beginning: "I recall very pleasantly correspondence had with you at various times while serving in the senate," etc. Everybody's getting it. Charley can still spread it too thick by a couple of inches.

GOOD EVENING: There's one comfortable place on a day like this—under a showerbath.

The Needs of Every Woman

"The Chance to be Useful and the Privilege of Loving and Being Loved."

By Beatrice Fairfax.

THIS is the day of woman.

We are just beginning to stand off and look at ourselves and consider ourselves as a problem.

Once upon a time a home and its duties satisfied us. We spun and wove and baked and sewed and brought up the children and rather enjoyed what the woman of today would be inclined to call drudgery. Modern efficiency plus modern machinery has taken most of our household tasks from us. And a great many women find themselves with leisure on their hands and a vast unrest in their hearts.

The world does a great deal of discussing as to what really is necessary for woman's life.

"Physical well being," says the Materialist. "Exercise and fresh air and enough money to live on comfortably. A woman who has these is bound to be happy and have a full and rounded life."

"The Apostle of some new 'ism'" responds to him scornfully and says that woman must come out of the place where material things are and study her soul. She mustn't think of her body, but of beauty, all-compensating beauty.

The Intellectual looks up over his thick goggles and says, "Nonsense! What woman needs is work."

The Old-fashioned Man shakes his head sadly and declares, "Oh, no; what woman needs is to give up all these new movements and the desire to make her own place in the world and to come back to baking and cooking and satisfy herself in the home as her mother did before her."

The Woman's Idea.

But Woman herself shakes her head to all of this. She has looked out into the world and seen that it has need of her and she knows that she has need of it. Perhaps there is a vague unrest in her heart, but there are ideals, too. She knows that, however much she needs sunshine and fresh air and thoughts of beauty and enough domesticity to satisfy her, there is more needed.

Woman needs a chance to do useful work and the joy of counting something to some one for whom she cares.

In an ideal state one might sum it up by saying that she needed happy occupation and home and love. But ours is not an ideal state. Not every woman can have an absolutely congenial occupation. Too many women have to forgo the warmth and comfort of home and husbands and children don't seem quite numerous enough to go round.

So for practical purposes woman has to be satisfied with a chance at useful occupation in which she can express herself sanely and to which she can bring a certain vital energy which will make her gradually come to feel a real interest in it.

An adaptable woman who wanted to be a concert singer and who ended up by being a reader in a play broker's office would be able to make that work interesting and satisfying.

Love is an absolute necessity. Without it human life could not more persist than could our world exist entirely without sunshine. But sunshine doesn't come just when we want it nor with the precise degree of warmth we might ask. Nor is woman always given the love of a strong man. It isn't actually necessary, either.

What is necessary is to "matter" supremely to some one. That some one may be a bedridden old mother, or a crippled little sister, or a worn and weary father, or a young brother who looks to one worshipfully for help and guidance.

Even the woman who has no kith nor kin may have splendid loyal friendships. And the woman who has that has not an empty life.

None of us can exist without work to interest us and love to warm and caress us. If we have that we have much. If we have more we are indeed blessed.

But what every woman needs, in its simplest terms, is the chance to be useful and the privilege of loving and being loved.

SOME PASTEURIZED MILK HELPS TO KEEP BABY WELL

Mother's milk is free from germs. But when the time comes for baby to be fed with cow's milk there is great danger it will contain germs, particularly in the summer time when it spoils quickly.

To guard against these germs cow's milk should be pasteurized before it is given to baby.

Pasteurization means heating the milk to about 150 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes, then rapidly cooling it.

Milk for the baby always should be pasteurized in the feeding bottle. It may be done as follows:

The milk should be mixed and poured into the clean feeding bottle, which should then be stoppered with clean, non-absorbent cotton or caps. It is then ready for pasteurization.

Though a number of satisfactory pasteurizers can be bought in the shape one can be constructed easily at home.

Place a wire basket containing all the nursing bottles used in 24 hours in a vessel of cold water filled to a point a little above the level of the milk.

Heat the water and allow it to boil for five minutes. Then run cold water into the vessel until the milk is cooled to the temperature of the running water.

The milk is then put into the ice chest, which should not be warmer than 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

File this hint as a way for funerals.

TRAVELETTE BY NISSAN.

WINCHESTER.

Winchester is one of the most likeable and attractive of the little inland cities of England. Even the war has only served to make it sleepier than ever by drawing away the young men. And there has been no increased bustle of industry to compensate, for Winchester's chief products are picturesque vistas and memories.

It is a bit hard for the American visitor at first to grasp the spirit of Winchester, so different from the one that animates almost all our towns and cities, large and small. Even New York is pushing and bustling, and New York might seem to the unprejudiced big enough and rich enough to satisfy the most exacting. As for our smaller towns, everyone knows how they go to work, and most of us are proud of their spirit and their methods. It is the spirit that made America, and to Winchester it would be the quintessence of the incomprehensible.

Winchester would be classed on our Atlantic coast as a village, in the Middle West as a town, in the Rockies as a metropolis—which means that it is a place of some twenty thousand people. And such it will remain. It is finished, satisfied, complete. It is not going to change. It does not want to change. It has a history running back two thousand years; it has the bones of Alfred and scores of other great men in its cathedral; it was a Roman camp, as witness its name; it has had a long and eventful past, and now in its old age, it has settled down to look forward to a long eventless future, unchanging and content. The men of Winchester may still go forth to new lands and adventure, to war and death; but Winchester will quietly honor the living and mourn the dead, never stirring in its calm. American civilization is an offshoot of English stock, but towns like Winchester seem in a way more foreign than China or Tibet.

The old Roman road from Canterbury leads to Winchester over the rolling chalk downs, and through the green river valley. The town itself lies on low hills that lend it a pleasing irregularity. The tower of the cathedral rears its head like a watch-tower, a lookout that has seen naught but peace these many years. The little river murmurs beneath the walls, gentle and soothingly different, every wavelet laden with a thousand stirring memories, seeming to whisper that even Verden is only an incident.

"John, don't you think we should have our house wired?"

"So many of the neighbors have had it done and all of them seem to be thoroughly pleased. I was just talking to Mrs. Smith this morning and she told me that one had no idea of the comfort and convenience of Electric Service."

FARM WOMEN NOW AIDED BY FEDERAL AGRICULTURE FACTS

Country Homes Getting Valuable Pointers From National Experts.

Every Factor in Daily Life of Rural Residents is Touched by Research.

With all the marvelous progress along uplift lines making for shorter hours and better sanitation for working women, it is only in recent years that the necessity of aiding the farmer's wife as well as the farmer has been realized.

As one agricultural authority stated in 1913, "the farm woman has been the most neglected factor in the rural problem, and she has been especially neglected by the National Department of Agriculture." In 1916 this is no longer true for the department has turned its attention to the neglected woman who toils from sun to sun and has ordered practically all of the existing bureaus of the department to forward a movement that is for the direct benefit of the woman on the farm. This first step in a splendid cause was made in the reorganization of the office of public roads, which went into effect on July 1, 1915. The work of this bureau was extended to include rural engineering and in particular the development of a system that would furnish the farm house with pure water and good sanitation. It is perhaps the greatest boon that could be conferred on the women and children of a rural population. Another important step was the appointment of four hundred women county agents who are giving to the farmers' wives the same kind of varied assistance in advice that farmers received from the men agents provided for under the Smith lever act which became a law on May 8, 1914. The foundation of this new educational extension work expressly provides that instruction in household economics shall be furnished through similar channels and by similar methods as instruction in agriculture.

The initial movement taken in the development of this work was the sending by the secretary of agriculture of a letter to the housewives of the department's 55,000 volunteer crop correspondents. In this letter the secretary asks the women, who, it is safe to assume, represent the progressive and intelligent element in their communities, how, in their opinion, the department could best aid them. The way was left open intentionally for a free discussion of their problem and they entered upon it with great vim and interest as their letters in reply evinced. Many of them containing valuable suggestions which the department will follow both in its demonstrations and in its investigations. The letters themselves have been arranged by subjects and published as reports. They can be obtained for a small sum from the superintendent of public documents.

Partly as a result of these letters, the investigations of the department in the field of home economics have been broadened to include clothing, household equipment and household labor, as well as food and nutrition. Through the use of a respiration calorimeter, it has been shown that much labor could be saved by a trifling outlay of money. The use and construction of home made labor saving devices are demonstrated in the field as well as studied in a laboratory and the women have manifested the keenest interest in this work. One of the greatest successes of recent years has been the canning clubs for girls which has also opened the way to the confidence of mothers. Last year in the North and West alone public demonstrations of the home canning of fruits and vegetables were attended by fifty thousand women. In the South a like number of girls are now enrolled in these clubs and taught to produce as well as to preserve the products of their gardens. This new work for women is too comprehensive and too varied to be discussed in detail, but it is brightening the lives and improving the health of the farm women is shown by the intense concentration which they bring to bear on the work that is being mapped out for them by science and education. An illuminating instance of the possibilities of this work is the discovery that the ordinary fly, the most active of agents in the distribution of filth and disease, can be controlled by spreading borax or hellebore over the pile of manure and refuse in which it lays its eggs. This treatment will destroy the young insects while they are still in the larval state. Properly applied, the borax will not injure the fertilizing value of the manure, but where the manure is to be applied to the fields in large quantities it is preferable to use hellebore.

This work among women affords opportunity for recreation as well as instruction. In short, the department of agriculture for the first time in its history is a vital factor in the daily life of both men and women in the country. It is no longer a collection of remote scientific laboratories, working out in the isolation of laboratories and libraries answers to questions in which the farmer and his wife have not yet learned to take any concern. Today it holds out a helping hand to the man in the field and his wife in the kitchen; it helps the family to make a living and best of all it is emancipating the woman on the farm from a life of useless hardship which ages her before her time and, in the analysis, is unproductive.

EXPERIMENT IN HONESTY FOUND QUITE COSTLY

CHICAGO, July 17.—Time was when A. W. Kaney was a trusting, confiding person who believed that in every human heart there is a streak of honesty. Mr. Kaney lost his wallet. In it were papers and some $125.

So he inserted an advertisement in the newspapers, as follows:

A TEST OF HUMAN NATURE.—The writer of this believes in the basic honesty of humanity. Sometime Tuesday night he lost a bill fold containing about $125. He does not need the money, does not want it, but desires about all things to have it returned to stop the jeers of scoffing friends who do not hold his opinion. If the finder will return the purse to Room 328 Hotel Sherman, he will not only save my peace of mind but will be rewarded beyond every expectation.

A few nights later, Mr. Kaney was dressing in his room at the Sherman preparatory to going out. There came a rap on the door. Opening it, Mr. Kaney found there a blonde youth of cherubic countenance and confiding mien.

"He asked me," said Mr. Kaney,

"if I would give him a description of the billfold and its contents, which I did minutely. He said, 'I've found your wallet. It's at home. At first I was going to keep it, but after seeing your ad in the paper I just couldn't. And, God knows, I need it, too. But I am going to give it back to you.'"

"Fine! Fine!" I shouted, patting him on the back. That's fine. Not only have you proven yourself an honest youth, but you have restored me something more than the mere money—my belief in the basic honesty of mankind. And you have also enabled me to give the laugh to a lot of my doubting Thomas friends. For that, I am going to give you $50."

The youth with a lump in his throat, thanked his benefactor and departed, saying he would go home, get the purse and return with it.

Overjoyed at the proof of his convictions, Mr. Kaney went over to his dresser to finish his dressing.

"And I couldn't find my scarf-pin, diamond ring, and a watch," he ruefully confided Mr. Kaney later.

The youth with the cherubic countenance and the confiding mien has not showed up. Neither has the purse.

2,000,000 Armenians Slain, Says Investigator

PARIS, July 15.—The Journal continues its inquiry into the Armenian massacres and its special correspondent at Erzerum writes:

"The mere mention of the figures at times exceeds in tragic eloquence the most pathetic recitals. At the beginning of the year 1915 there were in Turkey two and a half million Armenians. Today there remain but 500,000.

"Two million human beings, four-fifths of a nation exterminated—such is the work of the young Turk government, a government which, when it came into power, was acclaimed by the whole of civilized Europe, as a humanitarian and a progressive one.

"The Central Armenian Bureau at Tiflis ascertains that the number of Armenians who have escaped massacre and been deported to Mesopotamia is only in round figures 100,000, and this number is daily on the wane, as they die in large numbers owing to disease, privation and bad treatment.

"It is believed that 100,000 Armenians are still in Cilicia and there are about 150,000 others in the western countries of Asia Minor. The number of those still at Constantinople and Smyrna is estimated at 180,000.

"These figures give a total of 530,000 survivors, which is no doubt the maximum. To this number should be added 200,000 refugees who succeeded in crossing the Russian frontier and are in the Caucasus.

"All the other Armenians perished.

"The whole of the responsibility for the massacres rests with the young Turk government, and it is these young Turks who, under the eye of their accomplices, the German authorities in Constantinople, conceived and ordered the massacre and it is they who urged the savage Kurds to carry out the murders and also, wherever possible, the Mussulmans, by means of arousing their fanaticism.

"Moreover, all Christians have been either persecuted or massacred. The superior of the French Dominican mission, the Rev. Father Bernard, who lived in Van until the arrival of the Russian troops, has furnished the correspondent of the Journal with a list of the victims.

"The Armenian Catholic bishop of Mardine, Mgr. Maloyan, was massacred with a number of his parishioners. Mgr. Isralian, bishop of Kharpou was massacred on the way to exile between Orfa and Diarbekr as well as a number of his priests and some sisters and a number of parishioners.

"Mgr. Khadjadourian of Malatou was strangled. The Chaldean bishop and Bishop Surien of Djeliah together with a certain number of their priests and Sisters Regine Rafo were assassinated. It is believed that Mgr. Tohelebian of Diarbekr met with the same fate. All the Chaldean and Syrian priests at Seert had their throats cut.

"It is quite certain that all the Tertiary sisters of the Presentation were killed and this fact also overtook the priests at Medeah, Suvakde Dereke and at Vevan Ohahr.

"The young Turk government of course did not respect religious edifices after the expulsion of the French missionaries. Their establishments were pillaged and then either demolished or converted into schools."

CLEVELAND MILITIA KICKS ON AD AT CAMP WILLIS

and quartermaster equipment and the efficiency of the men as soldiers.

The fact that Colonel Hunter's department for Camp Willis came simultaneously Saturday with Secretary of War Baker's countermand of Gen. Barry's order for the eighth regiment to move and the others to follow as soon as possible indicated to camp commanders that the war department was not satisfied with the condition of Ohio troops.

While Colonel Hunter was in conference with Major R. W. Mearns, chief muster officer, Brigadier General W. V. McMaken and John C. Speaks sent orders to their regiments to police their tents with great care and see that the men were in tiptop condition. They are anxious that an unfavorable report that might further delay the troops' departure for the border be given by Colonel Hunter.

One thing which was worrying camp officials was the food which had been served up as rations until Colonel Hunter's erasure of conditions caused a change in the quality of the menu. They were wondering if Colonel Hunter would report that the poor food had weakened the men and made them temporarily unfit for service a hotter climate.

Colonel Vollrath commanding the eighth infantry and Major Hard, leading the cavalry today were still confident that their men would get out of camp by the middle of the week. Both expressed the opinion that Colonel Hunter could not do otherwise than report their commands ready for service.

Brigadier General Speaks commanding the second brigade attached little significance to Colonel Hunter's visit and did it wouldn't delay the departure in any way.

"It is a routine matter just the same as the visit of the federal paymaster to pay off the boys would be," said General Speaks.

Colonel Hunter after a casual survey of the camp grounds said it was not suitable for a permanent camp although it could be utilized for reserve battalions after the guard as now constituted is moved to the border.

"The grounds are too close to a big city for a permanent location," said the inspector general. Camp Douglas—the mobilization grounds of the Wisconsin militia—is better suited for a permanent camp than any of the 11 other camps of national guards in my division that I have visited."

ALLIANCE.—Floyd Smith, 22, is still unconscious in the City hospital today as the result of striking his head against a stone in the Mahoning river late yesterday afternoon, when he dove into the water to get relief from the terrific heat. He was rescued by companions but hospital authorities say his condition is grave. The torrid heat here has already cost four lives.

STORM SWEEPS SOUTH ATLANTIC COAST SECTION

doors and early estimates were that fully 20,000 workers had been made idle.

The property damage, at first conservatively estimated at $10,000,000 increased hourly today as the rising waters carried away building after building that had withstood the first rush and it is feared the total damage will go over $20,000,000.

The flood has so crippled railway, telegraph and telephonic communication that large districts are completely cut off from the rest of the world. In some of these sections there may have been heavy loss of life.

Railroad advices received today indicated that the flood was also having a serious effect in the eastern part of West Virginia. Train service there has been discontinued because of the washing away of several bridges and long stretches of track along the swollen rivers.

In North Carolina alone more than 7,000 men, women and children have been rendered homeless, according to official reports. The loss of life in Asheville district would have been large but for the efforts of rescue parties that were organized as soon as the situation became dangerous.

Several members of these rescue forces were swept away in their small boats and have not been found. Among the missing are three nurses who turned out to assist at the first call for help.

Employees of the Vanderbilt estate at Biltmore are assisting in the rescue work in the Asheville district. Some sections of the estate have been flooded but latest reports indicate that no serious damage has been done there.

The railroads are heavy sufferers from the flood. Railroad stations at various places are filled with water to the second story. Where the tracks parallel the raging streams it will take two weeks to repair the damage that has been done. All traffic is demoralized.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—After repairs were made to telegraph lines in the storm section of the south, Southern railway officials here today received reports that the flood that cost at least five lives in North Carolina extends over West Tennessee and Northern Georgia, as well as North and South Carolina and Virginia.

In Tennessee, the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio railroad with headquarters at Johnson City, Tenn., has suffered severe damage to tracks and telegraph wires.

The Southern railway tracks have been damaged on the lines from Salisbury, N. C., to Morristown, Tenn., and from Spartanburg, S. C. Repair trains have been sent out from Southern towns, and communication with the flood center today is being restored. Meagre reports from employees to headquarters here did not mention the number of deaths nor attempt to estimate the damage to the company or to individuals.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 17.—Sensational flood reports of Sunday night from the Kanawha valley were not verified this morning. Reports received by the United States army engineer's office here state that while a stage of 31 feet, 7 inches has been reached at Kanawha Falls, 25 miles above Charleston, it is not expected there will be over 25 to 30 feet at Charleston, and that the stage at Point Pleasant, where the Kanawha joins the Ohio will not be over 20 feet. Thirty feet at Charleston is a small flood stage.

LIGHT HARNESS AT NORTH RANDALL IS WEEK' SPROGRAM

CLEVELAND, O., July 17.—The most auspicious opening in the history of the light harness horse sport was promised Cleveland lovers of the trotters and pacers who planned to attend the 1916 grand circuit inaugural this afternoon at the North Randall race track.

Elaborate preparations have been made to furnish the fastest and most entertaining racing possible at this time of the season.

Four events are on today's program.

Hundreds of out-of-town race goers are in Cleveland. All downtown hotels are filled with fans busily engaged in trying to dope out the day's winners. This task proved a stickler, as the class of the field made it impossible to pick any one horse to be held as a favorite.

The Edwards stake is regarded as the classic of the opening matinee. Billy Dale, of Walter Cox's stable, will undoubtedly go to the post as favorite in this race.

Veteran race-goers will miss the presence of Ed. F. "Pop" Geers in the races, today. Geers, while recovering rapidly from the accident he sustained last week, will not be able to drive until late in the week, if at all. However, all of the other drivers will handle horses in the day's events.

An invention, lately patented, of two Macon, Ill., inventors, makes it possible now for housewives and interior decorators to hang the shades and curtains on windows by the same fixture, and at the same time to eliminate the use of screws and nails in placing the bracket. The device is adjustable and can be changed to fit any size of window. It means of attachment to the window frame are two inconspicuous fastening levers.

MARK "FOURTH" IN MARCH.

Spectacular fireworks for Independence Day are denied the children and grown folks of Alaska for the simple reason that the nights are almost as light as the days in July, and it does not pay to attempt pyrotechnic displays if there is no darkness to show them off by contrast.

Consequently it has become the custom in many Alaskan cities, including Fairbanks, to hold a "Fourth of July" celebration on March 4, when the nights are still very long. Then there is abundant opportunity for displaying fireworks of every variety.—Popular Mechanics.

In addition to the many cases which developed from the routine of a night's duty by the police there were 226 cases involving alleged infractions of the automobile traffic ordinances.

Most of those cited were charged with not having their lights properly dimmed.

BUTTERFLY MONTH

TO DELIGHT in a word picture is a rare pleasure, and such a picture I found in a book of Ernest Ingersoll's that will appeal to all lovers of Nature's beautiful, and send out a more urgent call for busy summer days.

"We are now at the noontide of the calendar. . . . The woods are deep in the shadow of completed foliage, the roads and paths grow dusty, and the rambler seeks the watercourses and tries to read the 'books in the running brooks.' The shimmering fields, where hay has begun, no longer resound to the merry music of the bobolink, meadow-lark, and sparrow. . . . Yet the tinkling prattle of the indigo bunting, the chunk-ch-r-r-r-r-r-r of the tanager, the gentle questioning of vireos, as indifferent as they are inquisitive, the plaintive calling of doves, and other birdnotes, sound all day above the undertone of insect noise; and in the early morning and again at evening's dusk a sweet concert still salutes our ears."

"Now is the heyday of insect life. Threading the aisles of the miniature forest of grass and herbage beneath our feet, searching the bark and thronging amid the leaf-veins of trees, or burrowing beneath the ground, insects are active and innumerable. Wasps, in their houses of paper or clay, are tending increasing families, finally added by each daughter as she comes of age, ants are at the height of their industry; and everywhere, as summer advances, spiders embroider with silken lace all the grasses, rocks, and old woodwork of the farm. Such busybodies as these may attract little notice; but no one can overlook or fail to enjoy the lepidoptera. Everywhere you go butterflies dance before your steps, or rise and dip and curvete in the bright air about your head, while at night the moths flock to your lighted windows, equally delicate but less gay of hue. . . . 'Summer,' remarks Scudder, 'with blazing sun and diversified blossoms, brings us the hot-looking coppers, and all that dappled band of fritillaries and angu-wings, huddled in red and black above, and often variegated by odd dashes and spots of burnished silver or by peacock-eyes beneath. How they crowd about the thistles, spreading thistle-blossoms, or on the many-flowered umbels of the milk-weed, and fan themselves with content at their sweat lot.'"

"But, as has been said, it is the quiet stream or shaded pond which especially attracts the rambler now; and what beauty arises from the dark mud of many a weedy pool! Rose lilies, the dancing snowflakes of the water-ranunculus, golden buttercups setting off the rich violet-purple of the water-hyacinth, and, alongshore, prince of all the pondside, the scarlet spikes of the cardinal-flower. Here and there over the smooth surface dart and glide the skater-boaters, and over all zig-zag innumerable dragon-flies, throwing metallic reflections, blue, green, and bronze, from their burnished armor and gauzy wings."

It is the contrariness of her sex that causes a woman to love a man after she thinks she has broken his heart by not loving him.

Mrs. Sheldon Spent $1900 for Treatment Without Benefit. Finally Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Englewood, Ill. — "While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1000 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the insane hospital." — Mrs. E. Sheldon, 667 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, but with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

"I do not care what course you take to learn if only you learn it," interrupted Ralph, but this promise I insist on having. Debt I will not stand for. Do you understand?" He looked her full in her rebellious eyes.

PERSONALITIES I HAVE MET

BLANCHE BATES.

Copyright 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

ALTHOUGH I have told you them, out she only smiled at this of how Miss Blanche Bates materially aided in my getting to see Mr. Belasco after I had failed in securing an interview for several months, I must write another paragraph about it, as Miss Bates unconsciously changed the whole wavering course of my stage career.

As the months had slipped past and I had been turned away without a possible hope of seeing Mr. Belasco, I determined as a last flickering scheme to plead my cause before the Broadway actresses until one of them would give me a letter of introduction to this great manager.

The very first one I sought was Blanche Bates, and I smuggled myself into the theatre where she was playing. My knock on her dressing-room door was answered by Hattie, her faithful colored maid, who had been serving her a great many years. She told me that Miss Bates was too tired to be interviewed, but when, upon sending me away, I burst into tears, the kind-hearted Hattie overflowed with sympathy and it was she who rushed back into the dressing room and implored Miss Bates to give "that chile" a letter of introduction to Mr. Belasco.

"Very well, little girl," Miss Bates called out to me. "Go to Mr. Belasco and tell him that Miss Bates sent you—and for him to grant you an interview."

I fled from the theatre to Mr. Belasco's office on wings of hope, and the name "Blanche Bates" was a magic sesame which opened the door of Mr. Belasco's office.

For several years, I tried to see Miss Bates, wishing to thank her personally for what she had done for me, but it was not until recently that I met her at a Ritz-Carlton dance and had the opportunity of telling her that I owed my good fortune and my years of training with Mr. Belasco to her kindness to a little unknown girl. Miss Bates confided that Mr. Belasco had told her about it years ago and had laughed over my determination to see him.

She is now retired from the stage and lives in the country, happily married—the mother of two beautiful children. To meet her you would never believe she had been a professional woman, for there is no longer any lure of the footlights—her only thoughts are for her husband, her children, and her home.

I asked her if that longing for the stage ever awakened a desire to pick up the thread of her wonderful career where she dropped.

"I remember it well," I told her, "for we were taken to see it several times. Mr. Griffith went with us once, and I will never forget how tense he was during the scenes where you, as the little Japanese girl, were forced to watch the torture of your lover. What a marvelous 'Butterfly' you would have made for the screen!"

"It all seems so long ago," Miss Bates confided to me, "and so unreal compared to the simplicity, the happiness and fulfillment of my married life."

Then there were "The Fighting Hope," and "The Girl of the Golden West," plays which gave the genius of Miss Bates rare opportunities.

The stage lost a great actress, but the world gained an ideal mother, in Blanche Bates' retirement.

Chamberlain's Widow Will Wed

MRS. JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN. ©INTL. FILM SER.
LONDON, July 15.—The engagement of Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, widow of the famous Birmingham statesman, to Rev. William Hartley Carnegie, rector of St. Margaret's and Canon of Westminster since 1913, has been announced.
Before her marriage, Mrs. Chamberlain was Miss Mary

Mrs. Chamberlain came to the United States in May for a visit to her family in Massachusetts. It was her first trip to the United States in over 25 years.

PREDICTS ROUMANIA AND GREECE TO JOIN ALLIES

ZURICH, July 17.—The Bucharest correspondent of the Zurich Post predicts that Roumania and Greece will enter the war on the side of the allies before the end of August.

"There is no longer any doubt that Roumania will turn against the central powers," the correspondent writes.

"The king and the cabinet still hesitate, but they know that they will be compelled to change their policy by public opinion and the threats of Russia."

"The pro-Russian sentiment, which had almost disappeared during the last ten months, is flaming up again as a result of the victories of the Slavs in Bukovina, Galicia and Volhynia."

"Almost the entire press demands action and even papers which were formerly pro-German are now of the opinion that Roumania will sacrifice her future and probably lose her independence, if she does not ally herself with Russia."

"Military circles are convinced that the Roumanian army will take the field immediately after the harvest."

In regard to Greece the correspondent says:
"Greece will also surely enter the war, but probably a little later than Roumania. King Constantine, who is still pro-German, cannot prevent this, because all power has been taken from him by the allies. The monarch is practically a prisoner in his palace in Athens and may be driven out of the country any moment."

"The government is completely in the hands of England, France and Russia. The new Greek ministry has to execute all orders of the entente and is not even permitted to object."

"The new elections ordered by the allies to take place August 4 will surely bring an overwhelming victory for ex-premier Vassilios. As soon as the new parliament assembles and Venizelos takes hold of the government once more the remobilization of the army will be ordered and early in September the whole armed force of Greece will probably be fighting against the Bulgarians, Austrians and Germans in Macedonia."

"King Constantine may abdicate as soon as parliament meets. The ruler does not want to fight against his brother-in-law, the German emperor, and knows that he will be quickly dethroned, if he refuses to do so."

COLLEGE GIRLS HELD FOR SORORITY FUN

FINDLAY, O., July 17.—As a result of the manner of their initiation into the Alpha Zeta Sorority three young society misses, Irene Trout, Mildred Neff and Marian Chesbro, spent five minutes in the female cells of the city prison. Patrolman Robinson found them posing as blind women in front of a prominent drugstore and arrested them. A fourth miss was compelled to wash the windows of a well-known drugstore as one of the pains in the case were brought to the attention of Chief Crawford the young women were released.

STAMP MADE PALE NOW.

Domestic manufacturers are now producing practically all of the dye-stuffs required for the various inks used by the government in printing currency and stamps. Red is about the only color that the bureau of printing and engraving is unable to get at home. This has a base of aluminum hydrate, or barites or both, blended with a coal tar dye which has always been imported.

The shortage of this ink is noticeable to all users of 2-cent postage stamps, for in order to conserve the limited supply available, the color has been used sparingly with the result that stamps recently "run off" look pale. In place of Prussia blue, which is obtained from potash, a substitute is now being made from soda salts.

WILL SLOAN'S LINIMENT RELIEVE PAIN?

Try it and see—its application will prove more than a column of claims. James S. Ferguson, Phila., Pa., writes: "I have had wonderful relief since I used Sloan's Liniment on my knees. To think after all these years of pain one application gave me relief. Many thanks for what your remedy has done for me." FAUROT OPERA HOUSE

LAST TIME TODAY
The old adage that an elephant never forgets was demonstrated a few days ago at the Lasky studio during the rehearsal of some of the circus scenes of the production of "The Clown," a thrilling photodrama of the sawdust circle in which Victor Moore is to star and which will be seen at the Faurot Opera House, last time today. In order to have everything correct, the Lasky company rented an entire circus camp for three days. Among the animals was "Jill," a huge and vicious elephant with a reputation as a "killer." No one was permitted near him and he was used for exhibition purposes only.

In the audience was one Arthur E. Jameson, an ex-circus acrobat. Jameson, who had been standing near the elephants when they were being trained and strained violently at his chains. One of the trainers asked Jameson to keep out of sight. The former circus man asked the trainers where the present owners secured Bill and was told he has been purchased from a bankrupt circus organization ten years ago. As soon as Jameson learned the name of that organization, he walked over to the struggling animal and Bill, with every sign of joy, reached out his trunk and drew Jameson to him. Jameson explained to the crowd that he had known Bill in the old days and had chased a fox terrier out of a box car where the dog had the big elephant panic-stricken. Jameson put Bill through a number of tricks and was promptly offered a position by the management, and at the conclusion of the day's work, Bill lifted his old friend to his back and trudged happily along the procession. "The Clown" is a Paramount program release.

Brooklyn And Chi. Sixteen Inning Game

CHICAGO, July 17.—Brooklyn and Chicago fought through 16 innings to a 7 to 7 draw here yesterday, darkness terminating a wild game that lasted for nearly four hours.

Thirty-two men took part, most of them Cubs, though the Robins used five pitchers to Chicago's four. Two great rallies saved the game for Chicago after it twice seemed hopelessly lost. The first came in the ninth, when they hammered in three runs and tied the score. Then Brooklyn batted in three, only to have the Cubs tie the count again. From the tenth on, there was no scoring and few chances for either side to score.

Though there was little brilliant fielding, the work of both teams was steady and the batters did most of the work. Four times Joe Kelly, the latest Cub recruit, followed good drives by Zimmerman with hits of his own. They, with Archer, O'Mara and Wheat, made four hits apiece. Insertion of pinch hitters and an injury to Mulligan caused a strange line-up on the Chicago side, with Archer playing third base.

The custom of allowing spectators to keep balls batted into the stands, forced the home team to use 43 balls.

COUNTY GIVES BIG PICNIC FOR HOST OF ITS CHILDREN

7,000 Expected at Huntington (Ind.) Frolic Originated by Drummer.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., July 17.—W. H. Worden, bachelor, and the man who originated the idea of devoting one day in the year to the children for a frolic at the community's expense, is busy planning the details of his third annual picnic for the little ones of Huntington county, which will be held July 26.

Three years ago Mr. Worden, a traveling salesman and a man of comparatively small means, gave a picnic at his own expense for the children of Huntington and it was so successful that leading business men co-operated with him the second year and invited every child in the county.

This year contributions are coming in from all sides to finance the event, but Mr. Worden is still the active head of the movement.

More than 7,000 children are expected in the city and every one will have all the crackerjack, peanuts, sandwiches, cake, and ice cream he can eat and a huge lemonade stand will be open all day. Business and professional men, social lights, and laborers will rub elbows that day to wait on "King Kid" for on that day he will own the city.

Games with prizes for the winners are planned and arrangements are made for exhibitions that will delight the old as well as young. This year Mr. Worden has sensed the patriotic preparedness wave that has swept the country and will inject it into the fest day by having the G. A. R. lead the parade through the city before the children are taken to the fair grounds in automobiles donated by the citizens. In this parade every one will carry a big American flag, the gift of Mr. Worden.

The leading women's club will maintain a hospital tent with trained nurses at the fair grounds and a rest tent and a bureau to restore lost children to their parents.

Since Mr. Worden started the movement he has been in receipt of hundreds of letters congratulating him on the idea and many have inquired as to the details. Other cities have taken up the idea and Mr. Worden has received many invitations to attend similar events as the guest of honor.

SISTERS MOVING TRANSCONTINENTAL PREPAREDNESS TRIP.

MISSSES ADELINE & AUGUSTA VAN BUREN

NEW YORK, July 14.—Two sisters, one a school teacher and the other a stenographer, have left New York on motorcycles for a trip to the Pacific coast in the aid of the women's preparedness cause. The sisters are Miss Adeline and Miss Augusta Van Buren, of this city.

Both are interested in the women's preparedness movement, and it occurred to them recently that they could do something to advertise the cause by riding to San Francisco and back. Such a feat, never before accomplished by a woman, would prove, they argued, that women were quite capable of shining in the life of adventure.

They made many arrangements for the journey and took as little baggage as possible. After leaving Chicago they will follow the overland trail. On the way they will distribute literature explaining the women's preparedness movement.

Interment was made at Maple Grove cemetery.

Mrs. M. S. Mumma and Miss Anna J. Wilson, of Fostoria, were in town Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Clark.

MUST DEFEAT DEAD MAN.

COLUMBUS, O., July 17.—If a dead man's name appears on a ballot at next month's primaries, the opposition candidate, if there be any, must receive a majority of the votes cast for that office. This is a ruling just given by Attorney General Turner to the Hamilton county election board. Turner also held that if a candidate dies before the ballots are printed his name must not appear on the ballots, but, if the election officials are not aware of the death until after the ballots are printed, and there are no other candidates appearing on the ballot for that particular office, voters may write in the names of other candidates.

TWO KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO AT GRADE CROSSING

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sheidler and their son-in-law, Grover Williams, all of Van Buren township, Putnam county, twenty-five miles north of Lima, are dead and Mrs. Grover Williams, daughter of the Sheidlers, is near death as the result of a freight train crashing into their automobile at Leipsic Saturday night about 6:30 o'clock. The accident occurred at the main street crossing of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad in Leipsic. Mrs. Williams is not expected to survive the injuries incurred. Her arm and limb were severed from the body and she was internally hurt. Within two months she was to become a mother.

The automobile was driven by Mr. Williams and he had taken his wife's parents into the car for a trip to Leipsic from their country home, east of Leipsic.

A freight train was transferring cars from the Nickel Plate railroad to the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton and backed into the automobile and its load of human freight when it was right upon the railroad tracks. The accident occurred in the presence of hundreds of shoppers, gathered to spend Saturday night downtown.

The brains of Mr. Sheidler oozed into the lap of his daughter, Mrs. Williams, after the terrible accident. Mrs. Sheidler was 44 years old. Her husband was 47. Mr. Williams was 23 and his wife, 20. The train which wiped out the entire family was in charge of Conductor Joseph Warwick of Lima.

The bodies of the parents were prepared for burial at a Leipsic mortuary and then removed to the country home of the family. The death of Williams yesterday morning at 5 o'clock caused relatives to decide to hold one funeral for all the victims of the accident.

No blame is attached to the train crew. It is believed that Williams, thinking the coast was clear, drove onto the tracks without knowing of the close approach of the string of cars, detached from the main train. The accident occurred so quickly that the lives of the two were snuffed out before they had time to wink.

A week ago Sunday Mrs. Grace George's father, Mr. Moffitt, was instantly killed and her mother seriously injured when a machine she was driving crashed into a train, killing the father instantly. This accident occurred within a mile of that of Saturday night.

Tired, Nervous, Run-Down, Liver Clogged and Poisoning the System?

Tollo Water Will Clean Your Liver and Start You Feeling Good in Half an Hour.

Too much rich, starchy food clogs the liver. The drains become choked with waste matter and cannot discharge the bile as nature requires. When the little bile tubes become stopped, the bile is gradually forced back into the system, making the skin yellow and the tongue coated. The stomach gets upset, causing gas to form, you feel stuffy and uncomfortable after every meal, have a dull or sick headache and become tired, nervous and run-down.

The surest and quickest relief is a Tollo Water liver bath. Get a 15-cent bottle from any drug store and take a third of a tumblerful in a glass of plain water before breakfast. In half an hour it will dissolve and flush out all the waste that is clogging the liver, leaving every tiny tube clean and fresh.

When the liver is clean and active, you can eat what you like without suffering afterwards; you will never be constipated, nervous and unstrung.

Tollo Water is concentrated and bottled at Dawson Springs, the famous Kentucky Health Resort. It flushes and bathes the liver without irritation and does not make you sick or leave you weak and exhausted.

To get the best results and be sure you are rid of all the poison your system has absorbed, you should take it every morning for a few days.
